1. Level 5 Leadership: Level 5 leaders are humble, self-effacing, and driven by a deep desire to make a difference in the world. They are not motivated by personal ambition, but rather by a desire to serve others and build a lasting legacy.
2. First Who, then What: Great companies start by getting the right people on the bus, the wrong people off the bus, and the right people in the right seats. They understand that the people are the most important asset, and they invest in developing their employees' talents and abilities.
3. Confront the Brutal Facts: Great companies are not afraid to confront the brutal facts of their situation. They are honest with themselves about their weaknesses and strengths, and they are willing to make tough decisions to improve their performance.
4. The Hedgehog Concept: Great companies have a clear understanding of their hedgehog concept, which is their unique intersection of passion, talent, and economic drivers. They focus their resources on those areas where they can be the best in the world, and they discipline themselves to avoid distractions.
5. A Culture of Discipline: Great companies have a culture of discipline that permeates every aspect of their organization. They are disciplined in their execution, they are disciplined in their resource allocation, and they are disciplined in their people management.

The journey from good to great is not easy, but it is possible. By following the principles outlined in "Good to Great," we can improve our organizations and achieve our full potential.

Here are some additional tips for making the journey from bad to better and from good to great:

- Set clear goals and objectives: What do you want to achieve? Once you know your goals, you can develop a plan to reach them.
- Be willing to take risks: Greatness is not achieved by playing it safe. You need to be willing to take risks and step outside of your comfort zone.
- Embrace failure: Failure is an inevitable part of the journey to greatness. Don't be afraid to fail, learn from your mistakes, and keep moving forward.
- Be persistent: Greatness takes time. Don't get discouraged if you don't see results immediately. Keep working hard and stay focused on your goals.
- Surround yourself with positive people: The people you spend time with have a big impact on your life. Surround yourself with positive people who will support you and encourage you to reach your goals.

The journey from bad to better and from good to great is not easy, but it is possible. By following these tips, you can improve your life and achieve your full potential.
